Foreword

In canoes, rafts, houseboats, frigates, windjammers, liners, floating cities and biplanes, students from E. M. C., actuated by the missionary impulse generated in this, our college, have gone forth upon the seven seas, bearing aloft the banner of three-fold education.

That this Cardinal may be representative of the spirit of service in which we are all preparing for this same crusade, is our wish.

The Class of '31

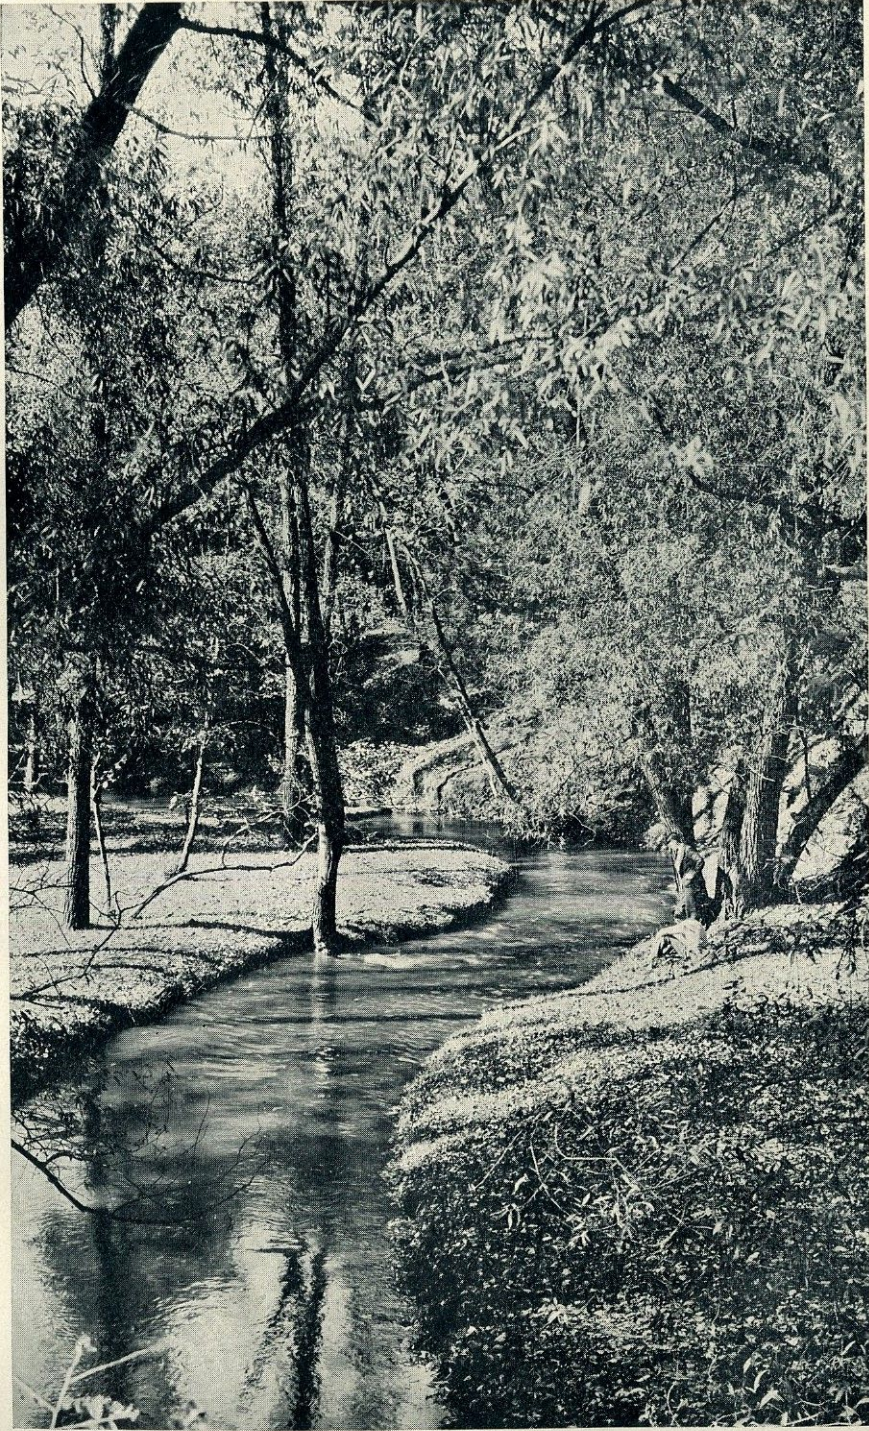

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
EMMANUEL MISSIONARY COLLEGE

THE year has fled and it is time to go;
To leave behind this we have learned to love;
Which formed in us a new desire,
A wish to know,
A faint design,
As of a vision of celestial fire,
Forever lighted in an inner shrine.*

*"Men may come and men may go,
But I go on for ever."*

*Here, as in life, we live and die :
Passing as others come ;
Here, too, the place remains, while we flit by
Like shadows, when clouds glide before the sun,
As if in answer to a mystic call
Behind the stars God beats a drum
Inevitably summoning all.*

Historic spot near the College

The Old St. Joe

NOT just to do, but to do our best!
Not just to win;
Not just to play,
But to be ever ready for the test!
Never to worry about what might have been;
To face the struggle day by day
And, like a solitary flame
Guarding the darkening gateway to the west,
Cherish our honor more than fame
That afterwards none dares to sneer or blame.

*These buildings—there they are!
There they will be when we have gone—
The semblance of a dream that is our guide,
To them we say farewell, proud that they will abide,
And like the morning star,
Greet our new dawn. . . .*

—Morgan B. Cox

*"It is a beautiful evening, calm and free,
The holy time is quiet as a nun
Breathless with adoration*

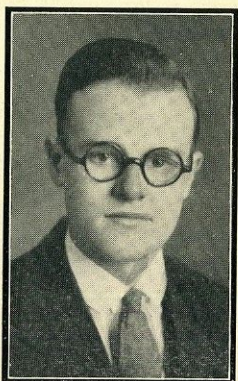

—Wordsworth

Dedication

To the regent of my kingdom, my playmate, friend, comforter, pal, teacher, judge, guide, strength, and pride — to my mother, this, the eighth volume of the Cardinal, is proudly dedicated.

President's Address

One ship goes east, another west
By the selfsame winds that blow;
'Tis the set of the sail, and not the gale
That determines the way they go.
Like the winds of the sea are the ways of fate
As we voyage along through life,
'Tis the set of the soul that determines the goal
And not the calm or the strife.

An old adage says, "Control circumstances or circumstances will control you." Circumstances never break a man. If he is a man, he rises above circumstances. The same sun that beat upon the head of Jonah until he "fainted and wished that he might die" brings to others health and happiness. The sun that burns and parches one plant at the same time enlivens and develops another. The disappointments and discouragements that crush one person serve as aids to a new and deep experience for the one who has his mind and soul set on that eternal object—"To reach the port!" Some one has described difficulty thus: "A mere stimulus to man, a bugbear to children and fools." Let's make our difficulties prove to be mere stimuli.

Perhaps one of the best known of the Saviour's parables is the one referring to our talents. Talents, God given talents—What shall we do with them? "The Lord desires us to obtain all the education possible, with the object in view of imparting our knowledge to others." For the last four years we have been fulfilling the first half of this commission. Now we are to go out and impart our knowledge to others. Our time, our mental faculties, our speech, our influence, our health, our strength, and our money are all to be used in the furtherance of God's great message to a dying and sin-sick world. "Cast thy bread upon the waters: for thou shalt find it after many days." "Talents used are talents multiplied. Success is not the result of chance nor of destiny: it is the outworking of God's own providence, the reward of faith and discretion, of virtue and persevering effort." For four years we have been sheltered in this harbor which has been provided for us by God in His mercy. Now we must go "Out of the harbor into the deep." Greater problems, heavier burdens, and more troublous times all call us to a more consecrated, a more sanctified, a more Christlike life than we have ever before experienced.

Soon the four winds are to be loosed on the earth and then will appear the worst storm of all ages. As we go out on this troubled and tempestuous sea we do so with full confidence in Him who is our Pilot, and who will, in His own good time, give the command: "Peace, be still." Then will come over our souls that "peace which passeth all understanding." As Tennyson has so aptly expressed it:

For though from out our bourne of Time and Place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my Pilot face to face
When I have crossed the bar.

Class Poem

Among the spruce and maple trees
Our Alma Mater stands;
Its welcome's felt on every breeze;
Somehow it understands
E'en hearts that come long weary miles,
From far off seas and lands.

Its doors are open wide to all
Who come with purpose true
Rich stores of learning to acquire,
Their young minds to endue
With Faith and Courage, Hope and Trust,
While wisdom they pursue.

As we the class of thirty-one
Look back o'er years gone by,
And view our toils and trials, too,
We have but one reply
To those who ask, "May we excel?"
"You can if you will try."

The preparation here received
For service true and grand,
We soon shall put to constant use
As duty doth demand,
And ever will we strive and work
As one united band.

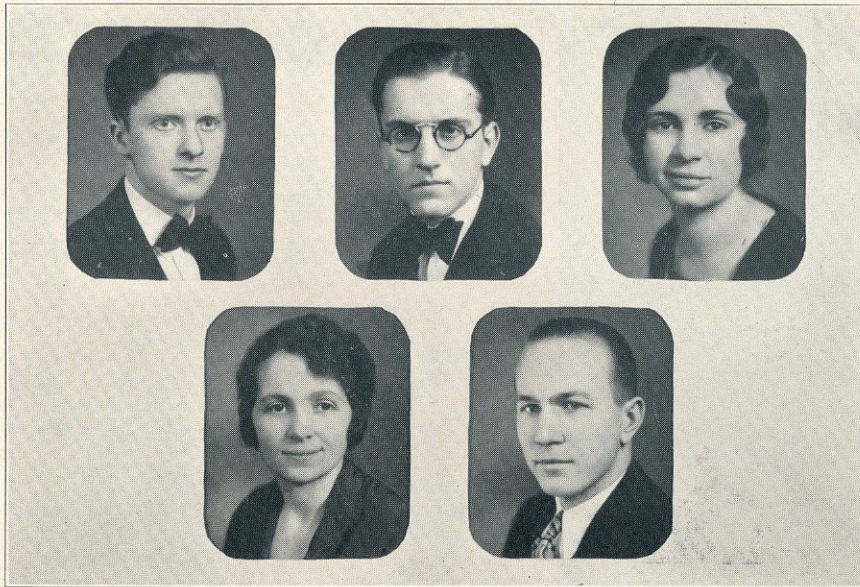

To lands and climes afar or near
Our way we'll gladly take,
Well knowing that our Captain kind
Will never us forsake,
But always near will be, to help
When storms our way o'ertake.

"To Gain the Port"—this is our aim
As we go forth today
Across the rolling mighty deep,
So restless, cold, and grey,
Which separates this land of ours
From heaven so far away.

With courage bold we launch away
And leave the harbor bar,
Whose shelter we'll remember long,
E'en though we sail afar
In carrying the Light of Life,
The Bright and Morning Star.

—C. M. Bee

E. M. C. Academy

TO VIEW the students of Emmanuel Missionary College one would never guess that there is a group of about sixty young people who are taking academic work, for these students are so intermingled with the college students that the two groups are as one.

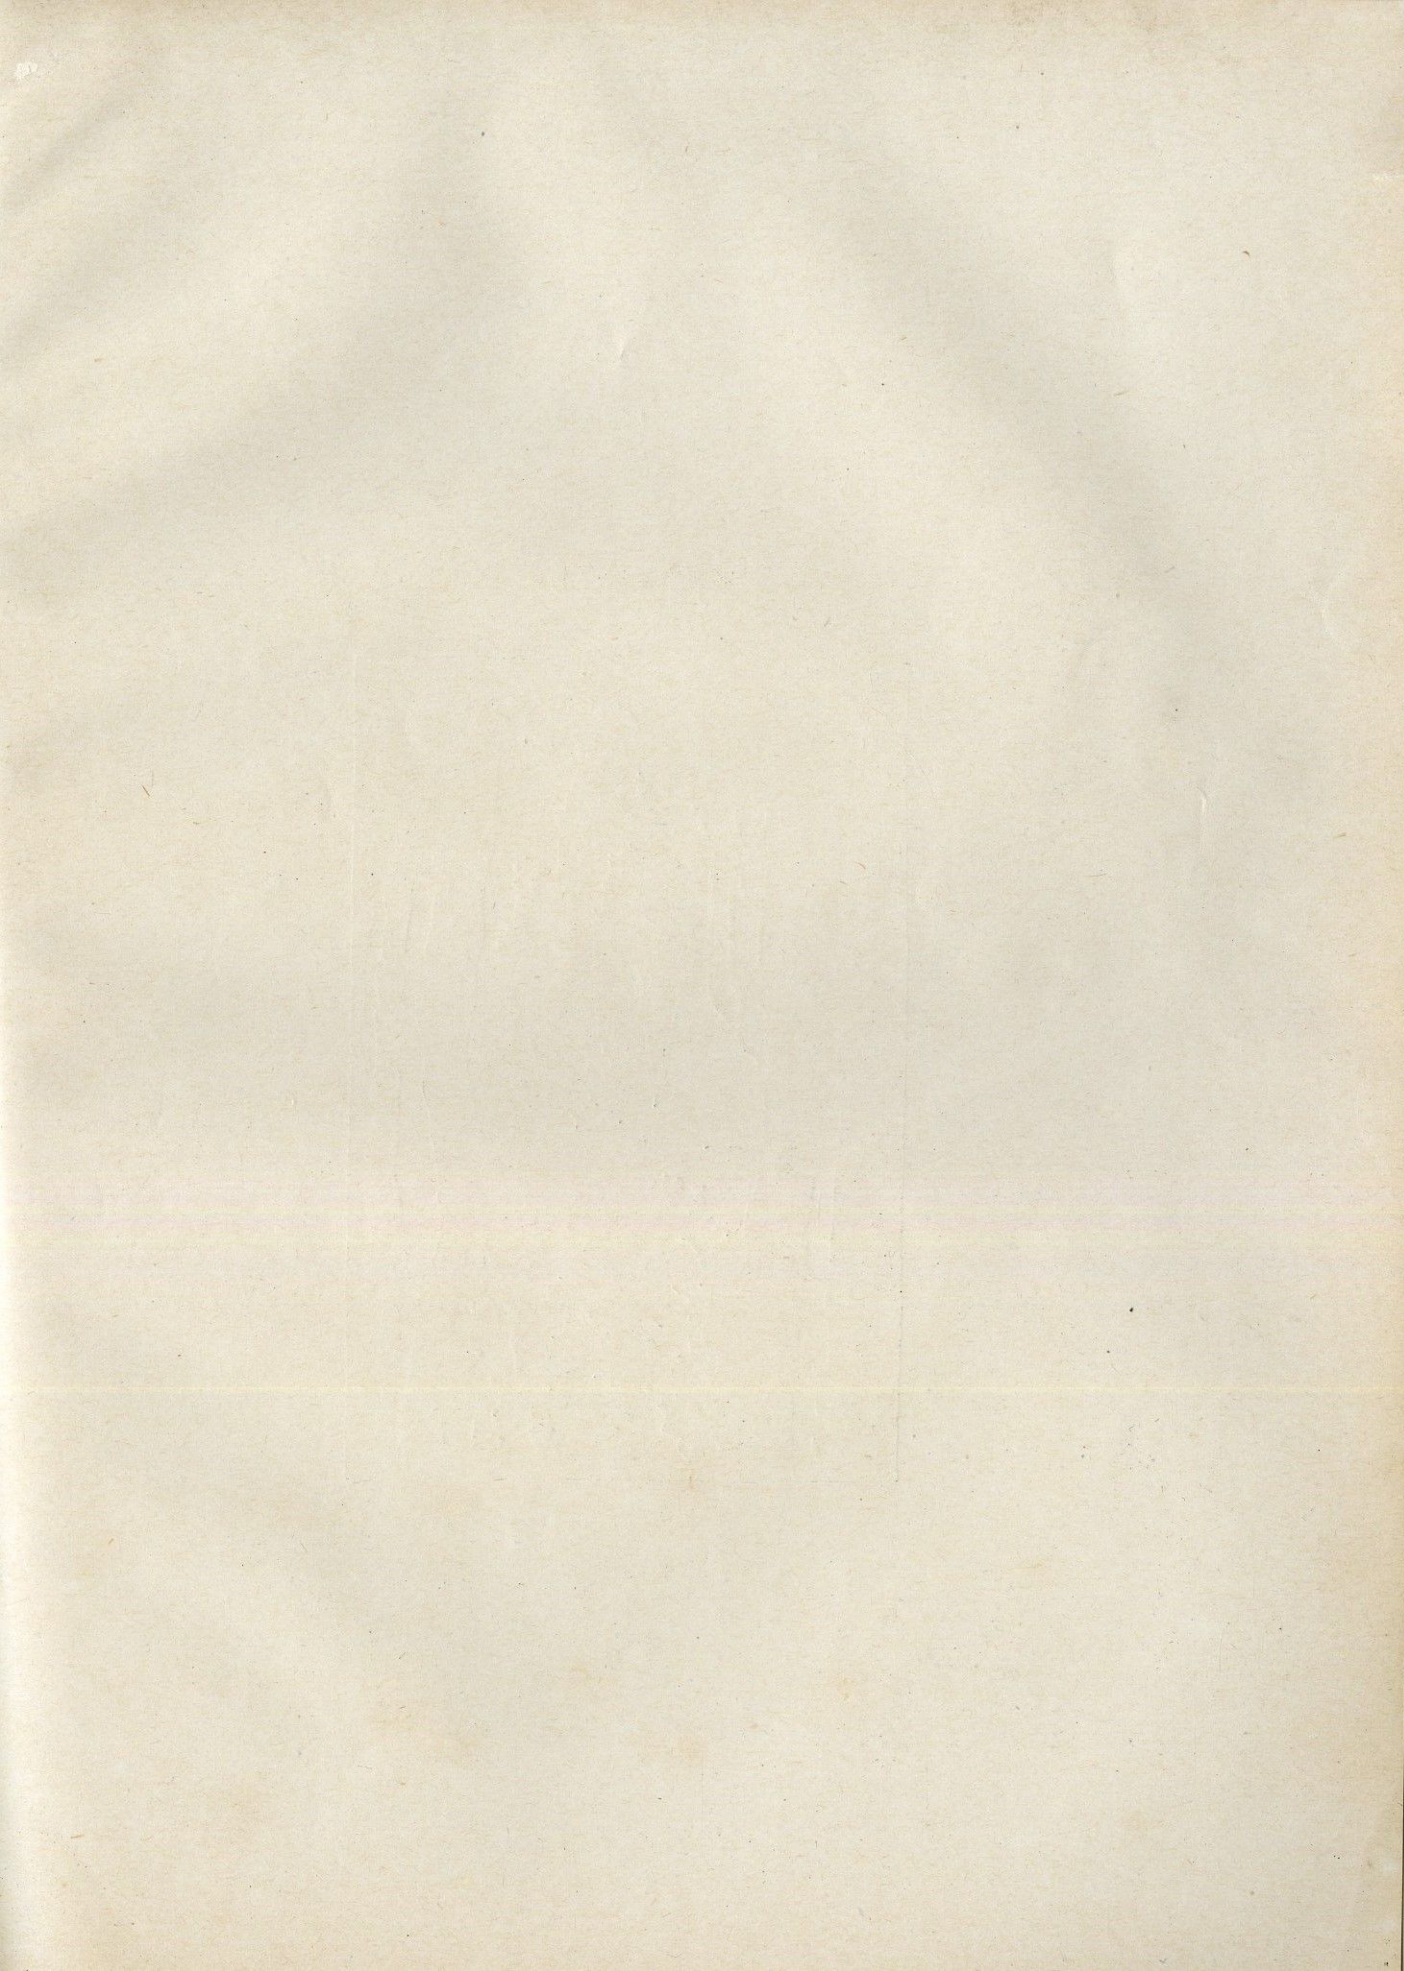

The academic classes are held on the third floor of the Auditorium. There are six regular class periods, four in the morning and two in the afternoon. During their vacant periods, the students gather in one large room where study tables and reference books are provided for directed study, and teachers are ready to help with any problems.

The students of this Academy are select as well as are the teachers, for no campaign is made to solicit students from their homes. The students are nearly all resident, yet they are made to feel a part of the College family.

The academic students are highly privileged to be connected with this school where they have college advantages while taking preparatory studies. Here they have access to a well equipped library, as well as to the influence of experienced college teachers. Every public exercise of the College is open to them. They take advantage of the musical organizations and of the Expression Department, for nearly every recital has representatives of the Academic Department. Architectural drawing, wood work, and home economic conveniences are used by Academics as well as by College students. Academics and Collegiates stand side by side at E. M. C.

Departments

Department of Expression

ARE you practical? Do you care for subjects that help you in a material way? You'll find them in the Expression Department. There one learns how to speak plainly and distinctly; how to breathe properly and support the tones with the diaphragm; how to make these tones soft, mellow, and round, and give them carrying quality without resorting to forced, shrill tones; how to walk, stand and sit properly; and how to gesture in a natural way and with grace. What could be more practical than that which has to do with our every-day conduct?

To those who expect to enter the ministry, this subject is of vital importance. Have you ever listened to a speaker who had a powerful message well presented but who distracted your attention by playing with his watch chain, or by assuming an annoying position, or perhaps bored you by his monotonous, flat tone? Examine yourself. Are you immune to such bad habits?

Do you ever have a sore throat after reading aloud or talking a long time? "Speaking from the throat . . . is not the best way to preserve health. Many have died who might have lived had they been taught how to use the voice correctly. . . . The training of the voice has an important place in physical culture, since it tends to expand and strengthen the lungs, and thus to ward off disease."

Department of Bible

TO SAY that the Bible is the cornerstone of all truth would be to repeat a fact accepted throughout the centuries. The philosopher sees this unusual Book a volume in which "are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge"; the English scholar reads messages in words that are "very pure"; the scientist sees the picture of One who "upholds all things by the Word of His power"; the historian finds Him whose life record is lost in eternity; while the moralist discerns a God who is "true and righteous altogether."

Since the Bible is many-sided, its appeal is unlimited. Everyone can derive from its study not only inspiration but also sheer pleasure, for brain-sweat in no other field is so productive. Because E. M. C. is not unmindful of this splendidly promising department, complete work is given in the preparatory Bible classes, together with full college courses.

Advanced Doctrines, designed especially for workers; Daniel and Revelation, embracing a verse by verse study of those two pertinent books; and Ancestry of the Bible are taught. A college course in Old Testament History, Hebrew Prophets, Spirit of Prophecy, Principles of Religious Liberty, and The Teaching of Jesus all serve to enlarge the spiritual horizon and to quicken appreciation for the everlasting principles of God.

Department of History

HISTORY is a record of what man has thought, said, and done. It began with Adam's naming of the creatures and is still in the process of making.

The object of history from a secular viewpoint has been to glorify man in his achievements, either in warfare or in the more peaceful pursuits. But the Christian takes God into account in the directing of human affairs and seeks to find out His purpose as worked out in the changing history of the world. The only correct way to interpret history is in the light of inspiration.

God, in His wisdom, has obliterated all traces of the race before the flood, and nothing is known except the few glimpses given in the Bible.

The ancient civilizations since the flood have also gone into oblivion. Recently, however, man has unearthed sufficient of the hidden past to verify Biblical records concerning the rise and fall of nations. God permitted them to exist only as long as they could further His purpose in the redemption of the race.

The History Department is maintained at E. M. C. for the purpose of assisting the student to become acquainted with the unfolding of God's great plan for the race, and the Bible is given its rightful place as the standard of authority by which to compare all other authority.

Department of English

WOULD you enjoy the cream of thought and philosophy down through the centuries, in the exquisite China vessels of beautiful expression? Would you bring to this feast a taste, cultured and refined, an understanding tempered and sweetened by a knowledge of the circumstances and influences responsible for artistic gems and masterpieces? In short, would you seek to become great by absorbing the greatness of other men?

For those answering these questions in the affirmative, English Literature, American Literature, and Biblical Literature in various courses offer a combination of education and pleasure that satisfies the most earnest seeker after beauty and truth; and College Grammar and Rhetoric, the foundation and frame upon which all other courses build and enlarge, maintain their popularity by usefulness and universality of appeal.

There are those, however, who, not content with the artistic productions of others, would try their wings in flights original. Creative Prose Writing, and Essays, are two self-explanatory courses prepared for the service of these courageous and adventurous ones. Some may express their loftiest heights of thought and fancy in music, some in painting or sculpture, some in a well-built house or a perfect cake—but still for these others, the magic of words lends enchantment to their pen and lo! language achieves its goal.

Library

THE completion of the new library was a major event at E. M. C. during the year 1930. It is an indication of physical growth and progress and also of faith in the power of thought.

A visitor desiring to see the new library ascends the front stairs of the Administration Building and, somewhat breathlessly perhaps, enters at the west end of the library. The long reading room that meets his eyes is well lighted and ventilated by the windows on the north and south sides. Around the room, beneath the windows, are book-cases containing general reference books. Almost two thousand books are accessible in this way. Fourteen tables provided with chairs afford accommodations.

The visitor advances quietly down the room on the sound-proof linoleum until he arrives at the charging desk on his right. Most of the thirteen thousand volumes are kept in the stacks, which are immediately behind this desk. Opposite the stackroom and occupying a similar space and position is the librarian's work-room, where books are accessioned, cataloged, and repaired.

In these comfortable quarters the college student has the opportunity of obtaining that mental culture which is essential to a Christian worker. Here in the company of noble books he may, as Milton expresses it, behold "the bright countenance of Truth in the quiet and still air of delightful studies."

Department of Science and Geology

THIS is a scientific age. Terms of science have become common words upon the lips of the man on the street. Knowledge of science is no longer confined to the highly specialized professions. In order to keep abreast of the advancing times, a large group of students have been studying this year in the Department of Science and Geology.

In a Christian college, the purpose of the study of science is two-fold. God is the author of all true science. In His created works are to be found lessons as important and as necessary as those revealed in the written Word. And the correct interpretation of these is by no means the lesser aim of the students in these departments.

Closely intermingled and greatly confused with science today, is an insidious pseudo-science, a colossally complicated and involved structure of truth and falsehood fabricated in support of the theory of organic evolution. In schools of the world it is impossible to study true science without a contamination of speculative, evolutionary falsehoods. But in our Science Department the students are taught truths that are in accordance with the Bible record.

To those at E. M. C. is offered a choice in science studies from a number of widely divergent courses. One may turn a telescope skyward and study the mysteries of stars whose distances are measured in "light years," or he may choose geology as his field, and delve deep into the earth in his search for truth. Courses in Physics, Biology, Physiology, and Chemistry complete the science curriculum.

Piano and Organ

Many love music but for music's sake,
Many because her touches can awake
Thoughts that repose within the breasts half-dead,
And rise to follow where she loves to lead.
What various feelings come from days gone by!
What tears from far-off sources dim the eye!
Few, when light fingers with sweet voices play
And melodies swell, pause, and melt away,
Mind how at every touch, at every tone,
A spark of life hath glistened and hath gone.
—Walter Landor

MMUSIC always plays a large part in the activities of a school, and so here at E. M. C. we find that it is indispensable to our school life. The study of piano demands a spirit of perseverance and concentration and develops poise and accuracy in the pupil.

Our three manual Moller organ provides an excellent opportunity for students who wish to master an art that is of value and enjoyment not only to themselves but also to their friends.

Numerous courses are offered in theory study. Classes such as Counterpoint, Harmony, Church Music, and Music Appreciation are of great value to those who pursue these studies. These classes tend to arouse deeper love and appreciation of music in the hearts of the students, and inspire them to greater zeal in developing their talents to aid in service for God.

Department of Printing

GREAT men are made, not born. The last three centuries have produced many famous and influential men, and among these, many owe their start to the printing trade. Benjamin Franklin is known as a statesman and diplomat, but to the every-day man, he is the printer. There is an old saying that once a man gets the smell of printer's ink, he can never get rid of that peculiar odor, and though he may leave such environment for a time, it compels him to return.

The art of printing has done more toward the promulgation of the gospel message than has any other one medium. It is with the knowledge of this fact that E. M. C. owns and operates an industrious and profitable print shop. Here young men are trained to be efficient all-round printers, capable of operating the ordinary machines necessary for doing good and thoughtful printing.

The course connected with this department is exceptionally well balanced. The theory of the art is well worked out by the students as they operate the presses, turning out actual commercial printing.

After a two-year course, the young man who applies himself is able to take his place among workmen who have spent many more years at the trade than he.

The practical man is the man who has been trained in the College Press.

Department of Commerce

IN OUR modern day of speed, efficiency, and economy, we must keep our work abreast of the times. Several courses at E. M. C. are preparing students to do just that. Try to imagine a game without a score; a meeting without a secretary's report; or an enterprise of any kind without records. It is an absurdity. To be efficient in his work, a man must be able to budget his talents.

If the student does not plan to complete the Business Course, he may apply the subjects studied in the Business curriculum on a degree course. Some of the subjects taught in the specialized line are, General Accounting, Cost Accounting, Business Management, Advertising, Salesmanship, Economics, and Business Law. There are two specific divisions in the Commerce Department; namely, Accounting and Secretarial.

The Accounting branch trains students to keep records, to make financial statements, and to find costs of doing things, so that the minimum expenditures may be made to reap the maximum value from an undertaking. Along with theory some practical experience is offered. The administration offers, to as many students as possible, work in the College offices. Under the leadership of competent managers, the more advanced business students do the clerical work for the College.

The Secretarial branch specializes in shorthand and typewriting. Specific speeds are essential to receive credit in both subjects. Stenographic work for the heads of departments is done by students to afford practice.

Department of Modern Languages

TO TRAIN us for Christian service, Emmanuel Missionary College seeks to give us a cultural background. The study of foreign languages plays an important part in this work.

In learning to master a foreign language, we not only improve and increase the vocabulary of our mother tongue but also gain a broad understanding of it. We acquire a love for literature and have an increased capacity to enjoy the noble things of life.

Those who plan to go into foreign mission work can receive invaluable preparation by learning the theory and practice of the language they expect to use in their respective fields. Even those who do not intend to reach foreigners in their own native lands can do a good work in this country.

In these times of increased knowledge, in which communication between nations has been greatly facilitated by numerous inventions, a knowledge of a foreign language is indispensable.

Our teachers here at E. M. C. endeavor to give us a speaking knowledge of French, German, and Spanish. We are taught to express ourselves idiomatically and to think in these languages.

As we travel to distant lands, often we learn little of the people simply because we do not speak their language. We may learn about scenery, architecture, and art galleries, but our social needs are unsatisfied. Travel has been good only if we have been able to make friends with the people. "We are thus exchanging the curse of Babel for the blessings of Pentecost."

Department of Home Economics

A SCHOOL would be incomplete without a Home Economics Department. Cookery is such an old story to many women that they find little interest in it. Others, though they enjoy it, never learn anything of the chemical composition of foods, or the reasons for the processes they carry on daily. The attempt is made in our lessons to reduce cookery to its lowest terms—that is, to find the easiest and quickest method of getting the most efficient results. The aim is to lay a foundation with which each student may become familiar, and upon which she may build a system of cookery in accord with modern scientific investigation and yet adapted to her own conditions.

Every girl should know the fundamentals of sewing. In the home, the school, or the institution it is almost a necessity, but in the mission field it is indispensable. Our sewing classes teach, besides sewing, the beauty of color combinations, and the harmony of proportion.

In obtaining a full Home Economics Course, a girl undoubtedly gains a wider field of knowledge than she would from any other line of study. She learns the science of cookery, of sewing, of art, and of home nursing. She can step into a home, or an institution, or enter a mission field, and feel perfectly confident that she will gain results.

We are all preparing for one great work—the winning of souls to Jesus. E. M. C. offers a training that is unequalled. This, then, is the place to be trained for giving one's life in service for others.

Department of Agriculture

DO YOU remember the thrill of expectancy when, as a child, you planted your first seed in the window box or flower pot, and mother told you how that little brown package would burst with life and growth and become a green-leafed, flowering plant? It was your first experience as an agriculturist. From that small beginning, did the unfolding of a knowledge of agriculture continue to be a source of pleasure and joy to you? It should have. Beginning with simple things that a child can understand, agriculture presents a range of thought which invites the interest and study of all.

The study of agriculture is conducted in a very practical way at E. M. C. The four hundred forty acres of the College farm are the laboratory in which are put to use the lessons learned in the classroom. Do you doubt that any delight may be found in the study of Small Fruits and Vegetable Gardening, Field Crops, or Farm Management? If you do, just ask one of the students in these classes or, better still, visit a class and notice the expression of enjoyment on the faces of those present.

Happy is that person, who, in addition to having been trained as a worker for Christ, has also a thorough knowledge of some trade or profession, whereby, if need be, he may earn a livelihood. Among such occupations, agriculture comes to the front as a means of affording most beneficial exercise in the open air and relaxation from mind-wearying study.

We look upon it also as a work that shall continue through ages to come, for we are told in the Bible that "they shall plant vineyards and eat the fruit of them" in the New Earth.

Departments of Normal Training and Education

THAT we may have men and women who understand the problems of education in general, and that teachers may be trained to solve these problems in our elementary schools and in our academies, E. M. C. operates its Normal Training Department and its Education Department.

The Education Department emphasizes the training especially needed for the various workers of the denomination, while the Normal Department furnishes practical teaching experience in our Normal Training School.

Department of Mechanics

THE buzz of saws, the pounding of hammers, the sound of happy voices, all show that the Wood Products Department is a busy place. Several types of ironing boards, clothes racks, kitchen stools, screen doors, steamer chairs, folding rocking chairs, and step ladders are among our regular products. The shop also fills orders for special cabinet work. Closely connected with this work is the Engineering Department, which cares for the repair and maintenance work as well as new construction and the firing. Fifty-five young men are employed in these departments.

Department of Woodwork

BELIEVING that the commercial and instructional phases of the industries should be kept entirely separate. E. M. C. has equipped a building for the purpose of training students in the trades. Courses are taught in Architectural Drawing, in Building Survey, and in Woodwork. In the first two classes mentioned, the student receives a practical training in the preparation of drawings and blue-prints, and in the actual erection of buildings. A student so trained is never looking for a job; the job is looking for the man.

Physical Education

OUR educational system is based upon the physical, mental, and spiritual needs of the individual. Principles of health must be taught. This is done by the classes in Physical Education.

Setting-up exercises are the foundation for our entire course in physical training. Dumb-bells and wands are used in connection with these exercises. The students are also taught to swing Indian Clubs, to develop grace and coordination. Special instruction is given in supervised playground work.

Master Comrades

THE spirit of progress and preparation for service, essential at the College, has expressed itself this year in a new organization, the Master Comrade Class.

Many recruits joined the ranks of the original class of thirty as they too caught the vision of true Junior leadership, till the group now numbers fifty.

Teachers and students have willingly given their time and talents to the training of this enthusiastic group.

The organization gladly welcomes those who see the need of this preparation.

Birch Hall

THE dainty leaves of the silver birches whisper of the hopes, the dreams, and accomplishments of the girls who pass in and out the friendly doors of Birch Hall. What memories they hold of those who have come and gone through the years, girls from near and far, full of hope and courage.

Their graceful, dignified branches speak for the high ideals and gracious training afforded the members of the Birch Hall family, represented by loyal hearts the world over.

May they bear her standards faithfully till the last.

Maple Hall

MAPLE HALL is a home filled with the liveliness, the gaiety, the fun, and the laughter of young men, but all these toned by the serious air of youth in training for the service of God. From the Islands of the Sea, from the continents of South America, Australia, Europe, Asia, and Africa these men have gathered to gain a higher education. Each young man has a purpose in mind, and is a member of the Maple Hall family in order that he may reach the goal he has set for himself.

Activities

The Science Hall Project

FOR several years past, the necessity for a centralized grouping of our college science facilities has been apparent. The inconveniences of scattered equipment, widely separated laboratories, and make-shift classrooms need not be detailed. The importance of adequate housing and up-to-date apparatus for the teaching of college science subjects need only be suggested. Fruition of the hopes and plans for such advantages is herewith visualized, and the project is in process of material realization. The gift of $10,000 by the Lake Union Conference, supplemented with the funds accruing from the $10,000 campaign by the college faculty and students, will make this new institutional unit possible.

While detailed plans for the Science Hall have not yet been perfected, they will include, in general, the following features: Three floors, 66x 40 feet; three laboratories for biology, physics, and chemistry, respectively; several stock rooms for supplies and equipment; two lecture rooms; lavatories, work rooms, and offices. Individual work benches in the laboratories will be a feature in the general scheme.

Under the direction of Professor R. E. Hoen, the head of the Science Department, these super-facilities will give added strength to the preparation of our pre-med students for their subsequent work at Loma Linda.

Sabbath School

THE aim for which our Sabbath School exists is soul-winning. It is the endeavor of the Sabbath School officers to keep this sacred objective prominently in mind during the arrangement of every program, the conduct of every exercise, and the use of every device.

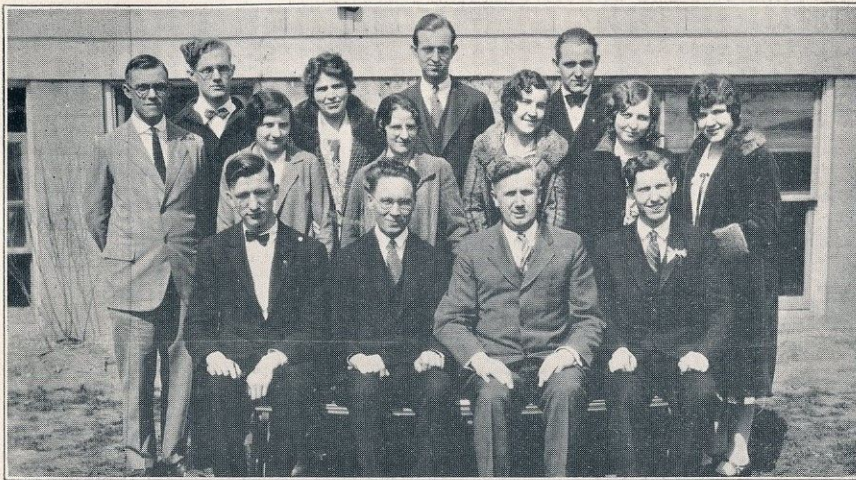

We believe that the spiritual instruction of our Sabbath School should be offered to all ages and that its influence should creep into every environment. The well organized Home Division provides for those who are unable to attend Sabbath School to share in its blessings. At the beginning of the quarter each member enrolled in this division is provided with a lesson quarterly, a mission pamphlet, and an envelope on which he marks his daily study and offerings for each Sabbath in the quarter.

As the voices of the assembly join with the orchestra in hymns of praise and consecration each Sabbath, one realizes that music is as much an act of worship as is prayer. Through the review, the mission reading, and the study of the lesson, the Sabbath School has an opportunity to touch lives and to prove itself an individual blessing. Punctuality, order, and Christian dignity mark the weekly service.

The goals of the Sabbath School—attendance, daily study, and offerings, are constantly kept before the members. The mere setting of a goal is an incentive to greater endeavor, but when this is combined with consecration to the cause of God, it carries with it sacrifice—a sacrifice of personal interests.

God is calling for eleventh-hour workers. May it be said of the Sabbath School at Emmanuel Missionary College that the instruction given therein produces just such workers!

Missionary Volunteer Society

AS THE streams of water flowing here and there through the land constitute, when harnessed, a great source of power, so there is stored up in the rest'less youth of today an abundance of energy, which, if rightly directed, can do much good. This great source of power, as represented by the young men and women at the College, is organized and directed into channels of service by the Missionary Volunteer Society. Every Sabbath afternoon this organization furnishes an outlet for the ever-flowing stream of youthful vigor. In the weekly meeting, plans are laid and work is organized for the active bands. These bands serve as distributors. They visit the jails in St. Joseph and South Bend, the orphans' home in St. Joseph, and the County Farm located within a few miles of the College. A Christian Help group cares for those in need near the College.

The Sabbath afternoon programs during this year have been intensely interesting and highly profitable. In planning these meetings the society officers have sought to give every Missionary Volunteer member some experience in public work. The entire membership has been divided up every three months into twelve program bands. Each group with its leader has been responsible for one meeting. As a result, our meetings have been both varied and helpful.

Emmanuel Missionary College is looking forward to sending many of these young men and women into the mission field. It is to this end that she is transforming raw material into a finished product. It is only by development of her natural resources such as is seen in the Missionary Volunteer work that this great College is able to send forth year after year a group of resourceful men and women to help fill the world's great need.

Student Association

THAT the students may associate profitably and pleasurably in enterprises of all kinds, there exists at E. M. C. the Student Association. Its organization facilitates the management of group activity in campaigns.

Through its Board of Management the Association links the student group to the Administration by means of student government.

The Student Movement

NO school is complete without some organ through which it can give expression to its aims and ideals. The Student Movement is published weekly by the students of E. M. C. It is not solely a news-sheet, giving a brief and comprehensive resumé of the week's activities, for it accomplishes a far greater task. In short, the main objective of the Student Movement is to arouse in the young men and women of this denomination a desire for the better things of life and to point toward E. M. C. as a means of obtaining them.

Seminar

TO "LEARN to do by doing" is the aim of the E. M. C. Seminar. The best way of preparing to tell the messages of Bible truth after leaving school is by learning in actual practice where helpful suggestions may be made. This principle is recognized in the Seminar.

The large attendance at the meetings in Maple Hall during the past year testifies to the fact that the Seminar service is an enjoyable occasion. It is profitable for both speaker and listener. In nearly every service students of the Department of Theology are given an opportunity for development.

A well known modern preacher says, "Personal work and preaching are twins." The Seminar emphasizes special effort for individuals. Recently a series of meetings was devoted to the winning of the individual soul. In progressive studies the simile of the diamond, from "The Diamond in the Rough," through the polishing process until it is perfected and fitted into the crown, was used to picture the winning of a soul to Christ. It was shown how the consecrated worker finds jewels lying all about him, while the ordinary traveler along life's thoroughfare sees only gravel.

E. M. C. men and women are going out year by year successfully winning souls for the Kingdom of Christ by using the practical knowledge received in the Seminar.

Ye Seniors!

Forum

EVERY young woman of Birch Hall is a member of the Forum, a supervised organization which meets two evenings every month. During the profitable hour that is devoted to this association, thought is given to the cultural, artistic, and musical phases of life. The program is given either by regular members or by outside talent. Among the memories that linger in the hearts of young women as they leave the doors of Birch Hall are the thoughts of these pleasant hours spent together.

Every Man's Club

THE beneficial society of Maple Hall, to which every man in the dormitory is eligible, is the "Every Man's Club." The high aim of this organization is development in etiquette, in manners, and in culture, setting forth principles of Christian reverence and social chivalry.

The Club materializes its sentiments and appreciation by the donation of beautiful gifts to the College, such as the fish pond, the aquarium, and the polychromatic, polychromatic, but mono-significant table, which decorates the parlor of Maple Hall.

Glee Clubs

"SING and the world sings with you." This must be the motto of the Glee Clubs, for each week as the forty-eight members assemble there is much singing. The purposes for which the Glee Clubs are formed are to give experience in ensemble singing, to promote cooperation, and to develop vocal talent.

The program given this year consisted of four-part secular numbers for the separate clubs, and several songs for the combined clubs.

The College Chorus

AMONG the musical organizations on the campus is the Ladies' Chorus. Any young woman in the vicinity who can read notes and sing is welcome. This year fifty singers gave a concert of secular two-, three-, and four-part harmony selections, several numbers being accompanied by both piano and organ.

College Band

ONE of the most interesting organizations on the campus is the College Concert Band, which has a membership of fifty. In the two Saturday evening concerts given during the school year, it has played a group of the best overtures, marches, and selections from reputable composers.

In addition to giving these regular programs, the Band has proved itself an active organization, by furnishing enthusiastic music for various campaigns.

College Orchestra

THE College Orchestra is an organization of twenty-eight selected members. During the school year it presented two concerts consisting of high-grade selections from the best recognized composers.

Only those who really have a desire to make good music a serious study are invited to join the orchestra, and consequently, a great deal has been accomplished this year.

El Circulo Castellano

IT IS true in all phases of life, that the ability to put into practical use one's knowledge is the essential measure of true mastery of a subject. To those who desire this maximum benefit from Spanish, El Circulo Castellano is one of the surest means for realizing such a wish.

The study given to the discussion of the customs and characteristics of Spanish speaking peoples deepens the interest and appreciation of the language.

Le Cercle Francais

THE sprightly, effervescent ripples of soft-spoken French do not come from the lips of stolid Teutons, proper Britons, or abrupt Americans without practice. And whoever practiced language alone?

In Le Cercle Francais the customs, history, and news of La Belle France are discussed. The arts of color, music, and literature are presented. But most important, the nordic inhibitions and austerity of manner are forgotten and genuine Parisian verve, piquancy, and politesse prevail.

"And who can help loving the land that has taught us
Six hundred and eighty-five ways to dress eggs?"

Scientia

OUR Science Department boasts of having one of the largest and most progressive clubs in the College. It has for its name "Scientia," and its aim is to foster the interest of the study of natural science among students.

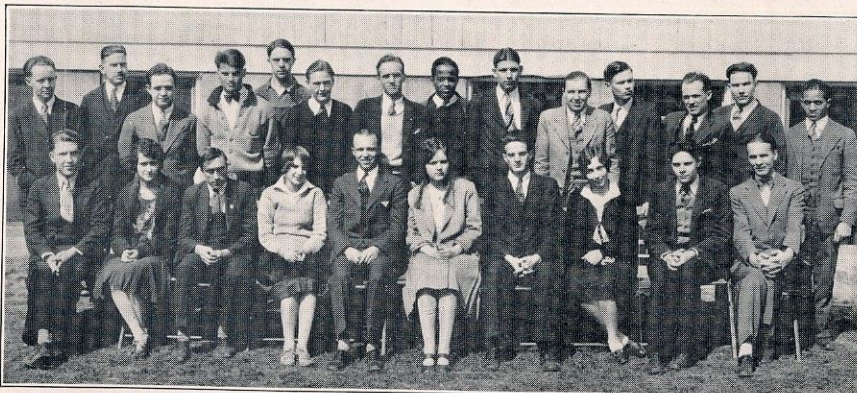

The club is composed of pre-medical students and other science students who have had, or are taking, at least fourteen hours of science subjects.

Amusement and instruction are combined in the programs of physics, chemistry, geology, and zoology to make them of utmost interest to all.

Typothetae

THOSE loyal and industrious printers of E. M. C. found in their hearts a desire to view each other unsmear'd with printer's ink and lubricating oil. So they organized the Typothetae, a club of press workers and printing students, in which to study constructively the art which preserves all art.

Instructional and entertaining are the programs presented, and the social contacts add to the pleasant memories of the College Press.

An Expression of Appreciation

WITH the completion of this, the eighth edition of the Cardinal, another volume has been prepared to take its place among the treasured memories of a college career. An attempt has been made to emphasize the high lights and particular events of the school year which will long linger in the minds of those who have attended Emmanuel Missionary College during the current term.

There have been many who have contributed their bit toward the success of the 1931 Cardinal, and it is only fair that they should receive mention for the effort they have put forth to make this volume a success. The staff of this book has been comparatively small, and yet it has been composed of journalistically inclined students who have unceasingly worked in the interest of the publication, and its early appearance on the campus.

Mr. Krauss, the capable manager of the College Press, has again given complete cooperation with the staff to make the publication of this edition possible.

To insure the success of the publication there must of necessity be much professional advice and assistance at the command of the editor. To Professor Tippett, Art Adviser, to Mrs. Burman, Literary Adviser, and to Mr. Mossberger, Assisting Artist, the editorial staff gives its sincerest thanks.

Institutions to whom the staff is indebted for continued loyalty in advertising, are the College, the Berrien Springs State Bank, the Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital, the Home Study Institute, the Farmers' and Merchants' National Bank of St. Joseph, and the La Salle Engraving Company. Individuals who have given particular assistance are Mr. J. F. Schaefer, Mr. C. R. Sparks, Dr. C. H. Woolgar, Mr. Paul Frank, Dr. W. N. Yeager, and Dr. S. W. Honey. Appreciation is also due the South Bend Supply Company, the Home Furniture Company, the Monger-Gampher Lumber Company, Whetstone & Graham, and the Keiser Radio Shop; to the other assisting advertisers we offer our sincere appreciation.

Kirk McAllister,

Business Manager

WHERE and HOW Will You Spend Your 1931 Vacation

Why not employ those weeks earning a scholarship right here in the Lake Union Conference? No other field can offer you the same economy of time and expense, and no other can offer better territory or more help when you need help. Look over the records made by students in this field in past years, then let your own better judgment be your guide.

While you are thinking yourself incapable of earning a scholarship, hundreds of other students will earn theirs. Do not hesitate because you are not a "born salesman." No man was ever a born doctor. It takes a little time and study to learn how to extract an appendix or money painlessly. A few weeks of earnest, patient effort will assure you of another year in college. Decide now — while your vacation is yet future — that you will earn a scholarship this year.

Nearly 1,000 pounds of paper are used in the 1931 Cardinal. If the pages of this edition were laid end to end, they would reach nearly nine miles in length.

There are 17,689 dots in every square inch of halftones in this annual. If you doubt it, count them.

The products from our College Press are used or sold in nearly every country of the world.

Do you know that the College Press is doing printing for firms in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Virginia, District of Columbia, as well as for certain cities in the State of Michigan? Furthermore, some of the printing that we are doing at the present time is going to be used in various countries of Europe.

Do you know that the paper used in this edition of the Cardinal comes from various sections of the country? The cover comes from northern Michigan; the main body of the book paper comes from Ohio; the division sheets come from Massachusetts; the ink comes from Illinois; the plates come from Indiana.

Between twenty and twenty-four students earn a part of or all of their expenses at the College Press while attending school.

FAVORITE SUBJECTS SAVED
FOR THE SUMMER VACATION

"I save my favorite subjects for the summer," said a wide-awake student the other day. "Then I can pursue them at my leisure under the guidance of the Home Study Institute and return to college in the fall with extra credits that are very useful. I couldn't enjoy the vacation without some study to occupy my leisure minutes."

The Home Study Institute offers a full line of college and academic studies. Its work is accredited in all our own educational institutions and in many others where its high character is known. Tell us of your needs at once and let us help you get started. The enrollment sent in to us before you leave college will insure your receiving the lessons and textbooks in time to start your vacation right.
