WHAT YOU WILL FIND

To give you a larger pictorial coverage of our college life at E.M.C., we present the 1950 CARDINAL. We have selected the white cover with embossed cardinal to represent the purity of the natural surroundings of our rural campus. Turning the pages, you will first come to a series of five pictures portraying familiar spots, not frequently pictured, just off our campus. You will probably next want to know about our campus life-who our administrators are and what is found in the various departments of our college. In this section-which we have entitled, 'What We Study" -you will find, for your convenience, the faculty divided according to departments. On the same pages with the teachers are clubs and organizations associated with the departments. Opposite these pages are fullpage pictures representing student activities in these departments. Believing as we do in a well-rounded education, we are emphasizing throughout this yearbook not only the mental development but also the physical and spiritual. To carry through this theme, we have chosen Gordon DeVries to be the introducer on our division pages. We plan to show you "Where We Study, Live, and Work," "Who We Are," "When Classes Are Through," and "How We Prepare for College."

70 Miss Abbie Culbert

WE DEDICATE

HE CARDINAL'S lady of the year has won her place because of the students' esteem. The bashful freshman who stumbles over his feet and surveys the college scene with the awe of the uninitiated is sure of just one thing—he wants Miss Culbert as his composition teacher because his older brother was in her class and says she is wonderful. The discipline committee is having difficulty with a problem student, but his behavior in Miss Culbert's class is impeccable—he can't assert the prerogative of untrammeled youth when she just takes it for granted that he'll behave, can he? The homesick girl on the third floor of Lamson may find that noise during study period is frowned on, but the frown is tempered by the gift of a piece of apple pie—and Miss Culbert's pie is cf the same excellence as her grammar. The despairing soul who just knows that the intricacies of the English language will forever remain a mystery to him finds that she is never too busy to take the minutes or hours to untangle his grammar, renovate his sentences, and encourage him in his work. More, he and countless others will remember, long after participles have ceased to dangle and infinitives are firmly cemented together, the kindly interest, the practical counsel, the sincerity of one who, like Chaucer's clerk, would "gladly learn and gladly teach." Years of teaching have not dimmed her interest in the study of teaching methods. These classes were the ones which interested her most of all her university work. And surely the students of EMC can appreciate and echo the sentiments of the university professor whose class she attended: "If there are any more like Miss Culbert at EMC, we want them. We never have enough like that."

The St. Joe

T is autumn. The old St. Joe is framed in color, and from all over the world students turn toward EMC. The historic White Beaver Point (where were once lighted Indian Council fires) is now the spot where students gather by campfires for muskmelon and ice cream during orientation days. However, the annual muskmelon feed is not the only time you will find students gazing over the point or strolling by the old St. Joe.

Lemon Creek

T IS wintertime and Lemon Creek wears white. The creek, a tributary of the St. Joe, wanders through the Garden of Eden which is below the college bluff. In the springtime, the garden is a favorite picnic spot. Here also students learn with Shakespeare that

... this our life, exempt from public haunt Finds tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, Sermons in stones, and good in everything.

The Heronry

T IS just between winter and spring and the great blue herons have returned. Bordering the St. Joe river just outside the village of Berrien Springs in a wild tangle of tall trees and underbrush is their home—known to E.M.C. students as the Heronry. The tall trees are surmounted by big brushy nests. This a mecca for budding naturalists and the goal for many early spring hikes.

Tower Hill

T IS springtime and students are turning toward Lake Michigan. Just off the Chicago highway bordering Lake Michigan is found Michigan's little Sahara, the sand dune country, with Tower Hill the highest dune of all. This is a favorite picnic area for EMCites. The long climb is a must—breathtaking but satisfying. The run down is better yet. In winter the high hill is ideal for tobogganing and skiing.

A Hillside Classroom

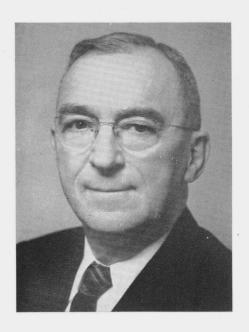

T IS summer and though there may not be gold in "them that hills," there is more to be seen than meets the eye in the hills surrounding our picturesque rural campus. During the summer the members of the ecology class comb the hills for a new flower specimen or a rare fern. These barefoot boys of EMC explore marshes and lakes, tramp over sand dunes, and take spot quizzes on shady hillsides.

financial,

The business office means various things to different people. To some it is a dreaded place where bills are paid. To some it represents a storehouse of wealth. To still others it means a lot of hard work on journals and ledgers. However, to all it demonstrates sound financial security, for it is here that expansion plans are formed and carried on to successful completion. It is here that salaries are paid and accounts settled. The average person knows very little about this office. The marble slab at the cashier's window is all that many see. With this viewpoint it is often hard to convince them that the business office consists of seven rooms, uses twenty desks, and has four salaried administrators plus thirty-two student employees. You can readily see that the financial health of E.M.C. is in excellent condition.

or scholastic.

The registrar's office—the historian of the past, the arbiter of the present, the prophet of the future. Through this office you are admitted to the college, advised on your program, and given suggestions and help in placement when you leave. Here are found the answers to such questions as "How many people were in Battle Creek College in 1892?" Where can I find this student at two o'clock?" "What classes must I take to graduate?" "What is John Jones' middle initial?" Here you cannot find the answer to queries regarding possible repairs for a vacuum cleaner or suggestions for a wife for a ministerial student too bashful to find one for himself. Although the office has complete records of the students and institutional history of Battle Creek College, Broadview College, and Emmanuel Missionary College as far back as 1874, there are some questions on which the office politely but firmly declines to commit itself.

Evelyn and Delores are two of the girls who help keep our scholastic records in order.

RELIGION and PHILOSOPHY

EDWIN R. THIELE, M.A., Ph.D. Professor of Religion and Philosophy

The confusion, fear, and unrest of our troubled world makes a study of the Bible particularly appropriate and important today. The unrest among the nations, the disorder in industry and commerce, the bitterness of spirit, bewilderment of purpose, and turpitude of heart so almost universal among the peoples of earth, presents a clarion call for the effective preaching of God's message of hope and love. The Department of Religion of Emmanuel Missionary College headed by E. R. Thiele is endeavoring to prepare its students to meet the needs and opportunities of the present hour by conducting services and holding student efforts in neighboring towns. To the end that there may be among the students of Emmanuel Missionary College a deep love for God and confidence in His Word, that this Word may be better understood and more fully lived, and that the love of God may be more completely reflected in the lives of men, the Department of Religion is putting forth its every effort.

of His handiwork,

Covering a span of less than twenty years, the Biology Department is still adolescent in growth, bursting at the seams of its present quarters. Whether in preparation for medicine, teaching, laboratory technology, or the enjoyment of a fascinating hobby, the student finds here full opportunities for the study of God's Other Book, whether on nature trails or in the laboratory, discovering hitherto unknown horizons for research. Professor B. H. Phipps, head of the department, and Dr. Harry Wong, zoologist, guided the destinies of 23 senior majors this year. The Biology Department looks forward to a bright future with the promise of added personnel, new courses, and more labora tory space.

to care for our bodies,

Those who aspire to the role of Florence Nightengale—the "lady with the lamp" —will find a well-organized Nursing Education Department to meet their needs. Eighty students are in the prenursing curriculum, preparing themselves for admission to nursing schools all over the country. Graduate nurses who look forward to wider responsibilities of teaching and supervision are attracted by the upper division curriculum leading to a B.S. in Nursing Education. Fifteen registered nurses are working toward this degree, meanwhile gaining practical experience in ministering to the medical needs of our students and community.

of what the world is made,

While providing the students with an adequate foundation for becoming nurses, chemists, and doctors, it is one of the objectives of the Chemistry Department to give each student the opportunity to develop orderly patterns of thought. Habits of precision and exactitude, the ability to distinguish between fact and fancy, and thoughtfulness in evaluation of information, are attributes which Dr. H. F. Halenz, head of the department, believes every student should acquire. During the past term about three hundred students have received training along varied lines, all the while obtaining a clearer view of the Infinite One whose handiwork they study.

ENGLISH

PAUL T. GIBBS, M.A., Ph.D. Professor of English

From spelling to Spencer, from composition to Coleridge, from grammar to Gray's "Elegy"—the English Department is an authority on them all. So you can't spell? Can't diagram a sentence? Don't know an allegory from an alligator? Dr. Gibbs and his colleagues can teach you. The English Department has long since reconciled itself to being the repository of all general knowledge and all branches of any art or science which can possibly be disclaimed by any other department. When instructors are expected to teach the political theories of Milton, the analysis of the nominative absolute, the scientific knowledge of Chaucer, the present status of the split infinitive, and the type of armor worn by the early Jutes, it is small wonder that the department unashamedly admits not only that it is the happy hunting ground for assorted arts and skills but that it is proud of its ability to handle the assignments.

Dr. Daniel Augsburger, head of the department, believes in the laboratory method of teaching. An experimental section in language laboratories is planned for the coming year. The department is placing increased stress on cultural training. "There's only one way to learn a language," says Dr. Augsburger, "and that is to know the people, their literature, their art, and their music.

the complexity of numbers,

The properties of light, sound, heat; the mysteries of radio waves; the principles which move the simple to complex machines—all are within the province of the Physics Department. The influence of the department is felt all over the campus in the expert help given by its advanced students in the operation of projectors, public address systems, and also the inter-college visits made possible through the generous services of the Amateur Radio Club, Station W8CCM. With the coming of Dr. Edward J. Specht over two years ago, the Department of Mathematics has been strengthened by new courses, plus his genuine affinity for numbers, which, he says, "are the tools that made scientific progress possible." His contagious enthusiasm no doubt accounts for the healthy growth of the department.

Designing a modern sound-proof building for the spring of '51, the Music Department is assuring future music majors the best. Whether in preparation for theory, performance, interpretating sacred music, or enjoyment of a hobby, the student finds full satisfaction. Professor Perry Beach, acting head of the department, and the whole music faculty, are guiding 26 music majors. The noted musical organizations, such as the band, choir, and the Collegians have won favorable recognition with their tours in neighboring cities and states. The Music Department anticipates a bright future with the promise of added personnel, new courses, and what is the most tangible of all, a completely remodeled music building with an addition that will provide more practice rooms and studios.

SOCIAL SCIENCE

EMMETT K. VANDE VERE, M.A., Ph.D. Professor of Social Science

The Social Science Department has as its chief objective the preparation of teachers, preachers, and businessmen who reflect the denomination mold and who understand and interpret history as "His story." Guidance and inspiration in this program are supplied by staff members each of whom has done years of successful teaching in Seventh-day Adventist schools. A reservoir of information is available to the student in the James White Memorial Library which is well stocked with material bearing upon these fields of specialization. Moreover, field trips to Chicago or nearby museums which are made each semester acquaint the various classes with pertinent matter. In the school year 1947-48 one hundred twenty-five students indicated that Social Science was their major field of study; in 1948-49 this group had increased to one hundred thirty-two; and in 1949-50 the figure reached one hundred thirty-nine. With these members a robust vitality has come to permeate the Social Science classes.

the importance of natural things,

Agriculture alone among the modern sciences is used by man for beneficent purposes only. Chemistry, physics, biology, and even medicine are all used to enable mankind the better to kill his brother. The harvest of the field, the fruit of the loom, the gardener's skill are wholly a blessing to mankind, used only for contructive purposes and never for destructive ones. Agriculture at E. M. C. is primarily concerned with this wholly constructive basis, for even its A B C's draw men nearer their Creator through the vocation and the avocation. He gave them in the beginning and will regive them in that not so distant New Earth.

MECHANICAL ARTS

LESLIE SMITH, M.A. Instructor in Applied Arts

The same God who endowed men with cunning in all manner of craftsmanship for the building of His house, and then sent His Son who worked as a carpenter among men, has even to-day planned that the hands of youth be trained to work with metals and wood. For this reason courses are offered in machine shop, enabling the student to identify metals, machine them, repair tools and equipment; in auto mechanics; in building construction, including the reading of blueprints, estimating costs and materials, and the actual mechanics of construction; and in drawing, emphasizing good design in practical building plans. These courses, under the direction of Leslie Smith, have an appeal not only to the prospective mechanic or maintenance man, but also to the future preacher, teacher, or physician who must at some time plan for repair or construction of buildings.

"Who can find an efficient secretary, for her price is far beyond rubies." To train efficient secretaries has been the goal of the Secretarial Science Department for many years. Not only production but also to develop those characteristics in men and women which will cause them to act intelligently and exercise good judgment in the care of business matters, personal as well as denominational. Within the past four years the department has doubled its enrollment necessitating additional teaching personnel and equipment.

Inexhaustible Home Economics has many outlets through the senses. . Olfactory: The fusion of ingredients compossing foods of all lands causes "the romance of foods" to be understood. Sound: The whirring of machines brings appreciation of economy and satisfaction of well made clothes. Common Sense: Demonstration of the latest in appliances proves the advisability of good purchase. Sight: The class in Art in Everyday Living emphasizes interior decorating, sharpening the original and individualistic touch. The various parties express that fine finesse in social procedure and decorum.

The library, where is assembled the wisdom of the ages in over 40,000 volumes, provides the opportunity for the mind of youth to meet the mind of the ancient sage, or the authorities of today. Making possible this introduction of the college student to the world of wisdom is a library staff, headed by Miss Arlene Marks, of four professional librarians and fifteen student workers. Increased comfort for readers, space for books, and efficiency in service have been made possible by the use of the lower reading room for reserve books and periodicals. The purchase of a microfilm reader and listening equipment for language records has recently enlarged the services of the library. The circulation of books over the two counters has been over 66,000 for one year, or an average of 66 books per student, a gratifying total for our library.

The only department on our campus which is on call for twenty-four hours daily, seven days a week is the Custodian's Department. In fact the store has just about anything you could wish to buy from belated birthday cards and Colgate's shaving lotion to cream cheese and choplets. Because of the expanding business of the college store it will soon move out of its cramped quarters to a new and larger building with booths for the socially minded.

The Engineering Department is undoubtedly doing the most "constructive" job of any department at the college. Adding at least one new building annually to the college assets, J. E. Riffel and his able corps of workers are making E. M. C. the denomination's most modern college. In addition to its building activities, an efficient heating plant and comprehensive maintenance service provide employment for over 40 students.

The press provides employment for 62 student workers in addition to its 16 full-time and six part-time workers.

The Berrien Bindery has been enjoying its new and sunny home in the east end of the Physical Education Building since last July. There, under the supervision of Mr. W. W. Nelson, old battered, torn, and sometimes coverless books become almost like new for schools and libraries in surrounding states. Each year the bindery helps about thirty-five persons obtain a Christian education by supplying student labor.

our way through college.

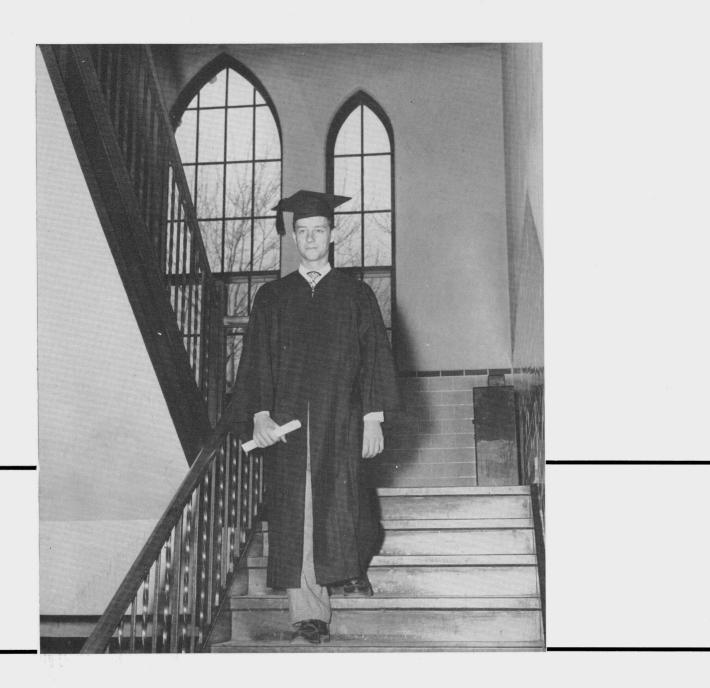

Wood, glue, and varnish are the raw materials from which nearly 100 students fashion desks, tables, dressers, and beds in an almost endless stream. At E.M.C.'s College Wood Products, Mr. Joe Day, plant superintendent, reveals that the C.W.P. produces $50,000 worth of furniture monthly—furniture which is shipped by train and truck to all parts of the United States. From the time the raw lumber enters the plant until the beautifully varnished finished product emerges from the shipping dock, many busy hands combine their efforts to effect the phenomenon of manufacture.

WEEKS OF PRAYER

ELDER MERLE L. MILLS
Fall Week of Prayer

ELDER C. H. LAUDA Spring Week of Prayer

ELDER S. M. McCORMICK
Spring Week of Prayer

"More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of." This is a reality in E. M. C.'s religious life. The faculty and students alike believe in the power of as well as the need for prayer. All the students are invited to attend the prayer bands which meet each Wednesday evening in the different dormitories. Prayer rooms in the dormitories help individual students find quiet places to commune with their Creator. This is Everybody's Prayer Band which meets at 11:45 each day—a refreshing mid-day devotional service which nourishes the hungry soul. Each fall and spring an emphasis is placed upon the religious experiences of the student. These occasions are commonly known as "Weeks of Prayer." Students anticipate these Weeks of Prayer as much strength is gained and many victories are won through the avenues of the daily prayer bands and morning and evening services conducted by guest speakers. Students and faculty believe "Prayer is the key in the hand of faith which unlocks heaven's store house."

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

The latest addition to our college campus is the new Physical Education building which provides a much needed outlet for recreational and social functions. The spacious new building has also provided adequate room for the large physical training classes. Volleyball, basketball, ping pong, and shuffleboard may all be played at the same time. Three times a week rosin is put on the floor and everyone has the opportunity to roller skate. Only time will tell the true value of this building to our campus.

The new Physical Education Building is not only used for games and gym classes but also for lyceum programs. Since the new building seats over 2000 there is no need to fret about finding a place to sit. Sam Campbell, who visits our campus yearly, gave his new illustrated lecture, "Irresistible California," as the annual CARDINAL Benefit program. Mr. Campbell combined his interest in nature with his keen sense of humor to present one of the finest programs of the school year. After the program the Campbells posed for the CARDINAL photographer.

Social life at E.M.C. consists of many formal and informal activities during the school year. One of the highlights is the reception which was sponsored by the Girls' Forum this year. This is a formal occasion as can be seen by the pictures. The top picture shows Rolene putting on the finishing touches in her last minute preparation for the big event. In the next picture Bob and Barbara are on their way. The last one is a scene from the program.

Pie and Cider time at the Fall
Festival

Ready for seconds?

Did it go over, Marilyn?

There it goes!

Among some of the more informal occasions during the school year are the Spring and Fall Festivals. There are also many other group parties and picnics which are sponsored by various classes and organization. As spring rolls around, the students begin to migrate to the out-of-doors. Intramural softball teams are organized, and tournaments are played. The tennis courts are also a busy place. The students not only play among themselves, but there are tournaments for both singles and doubles.

HOW WE PRE

PARE FOR COLLEGE

R. A. JOHNSON Principal

Academy Faculty

The purpose of true education is that of teaching young people to know life as well as to give them the tools for earning a living. "To restore in fallen man the image of his Creator" is the will of God for every human creature.

An education which has ideals of lesser height fails to comprehend the possibilities of youth.

Emmanuel Missionary College Academy has for three fourths of a century been dedicated to the work of implanting Christian standards and ideals in thousands of her students. It has successfully directed the attention of these students to paths of Christian living and increased their ability to live useful and serviceable lives for others.

PASTOR W. HARBOUR Fall Week of Prayer

ELDER H. SCHMIDT Spring Week of Prayer

At E.M.C.A. there are spiritual activities,

"How sweet the thought that comes to me On mountain or on stormy sea: There is no land or clime or zone Where Jesus leaves his sheep alone." W. C. Poole

It is our privilege to talk to Jesus as to a friend. As we commune with Jesus daily, our lives will be guided by the Great Teacher speaking to us individually, just as truly as if we could hear His voice.

"Watch and pray, that when the Master cometh,
If at morning, noon, or night,
He may find a lamp in ev'ry window
Trimmed and burning, clear and bright."

Beautiful Gift Books - Each Individually Boxed

FAITH ON TIPTOE,

Marjorie Lewis Lloyd.

If you have once read this beautiful gift book, you will not be satisfied until you have induced someone else to read it. As the title implies, it will help you see over dark horizons. $1.25

IN THE BRIGHT SYRIAN LAND, Frances Jenkins Olcott.

Seeing the Holy Land through the eyes of a well-informed observer is always a new and charming experience, especially when its hills and valleys are used with the name of Christ in a unique symbolism. $1.25

CROWNS AND CROSSES, Marjorie Lewis Lloyd.

This lovely gift book presents vital religious themes down on the street level. It makes Christian experience a thrilling adventure. $1.25

WHATSOEVER THINGS ARE LOVELY, Jessie Wilmore Murton.

Here is poetry of a high order, both in theme and versification. The noble aspects of everyday virtues and the uncommon values in commonplace things are captured here in memorable poetic imagery. $1.25

WHAT YOU WILL FIND

To give you a larger pictorial coverage of our college life at E.M.C., we present the 1950 CARDINAL. We have selected the white cover with embossed cardinal to represent the purity of the natural surroundings of our rural campus. Turning the pages, you will first come to a series of five pictures portraying familiar spots, not frequently pictured, just off our campus. You will probably next want to know about our campus life-who our administrators are and what is found in the various departments of our college. In this section-which we have entitled, 'What We Study" -you will find, for your convenience, the faculty divided according to departments. On the same pages with the teachers are clubs and organizations associated with the departments. Opposite these pages are fullpage pictures representing student activities in these departments. Believing as we do in a well-rounded education, we are emphasizing throughout this yearbook not only the mental development but also the physical and spiritual. To carry through this theme, we have chosen Gordon DeVries to be the introducer on our division pages. We plan to show you "Where We Study, Live, and Work," "Who We Are," "When Classes Are Through," and "How We Prepare for College."

70 Miss Abbie Culbert

WE DEDICATE

HE CARDINAL'S lady of the year has won her place because of the students' esteem. The bashful freshman who stumbles over his feet and surveys the college scene with the awe of the uninitiated is sure of just one thing—he wants Miss Culbert as his composition teacher because his older brother was in her class and says she is wonderful. The discipline committee is having difficulty with a problem student, but his behavior in Miss Culbert's class is impeccable—he can't assert the prerogative of untrammeled youth when she just takes it for granted that he'll behave, can he? The homesick girl on the third floor of Lamson may find that noise during study period is frowned on, but the frown is tempered by the gift of a piece of apple pie—and Miss Culbert's pie is cf the same excellence as her grammar. The despairing soul who just knows that the intricacies of the English language will forever remain a mystery to him finds that she is never too busy to take the minutes or hours to untangle his grammar, renovate his sentences, and encourage him in his work. More, he and countless others will remember, long after participles have ceased to dangle and infinitives are firmly cemented together, the kindly interest, the practical counsel, the sincerity of one who, like Chaucer's clerk, would "gladly learn and gladly teach." Years of teaching have not dimmed her interest in the study of teaching methods. These classes were the ones which interested her most of all her university work. And surely the students of EMC can appreciate and echo the sentiments of the university professor whose class she attended: "If there are any more like Miss Culbert at EMC, we want them. We never have enough like that."

The St. Joe

T is autumn. The old St. Joe is framed in color, and from all over the world students turn toward EMC. The historic White Beaver Point (where were once lighted Indian Council fires) is now the spot where students gather by campfires for muskmelon and ice cream during orientation days. However, the annual muskmelon feed is not the only time you will find students gazing over the point or strolling by the old St. Joe.

Lemon Creek

T IS wintertime and Lemon Creek wears white. The creek, a tributary of the St. Joe, wanders through the Garden of Eden which is below the college bluff. In the springtime, the garden is a favorite picnic spot. Here also students learn with Shakespeare that

... this our life, exempt from public haunt Finds tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, Sermons in stones, and good in everything.

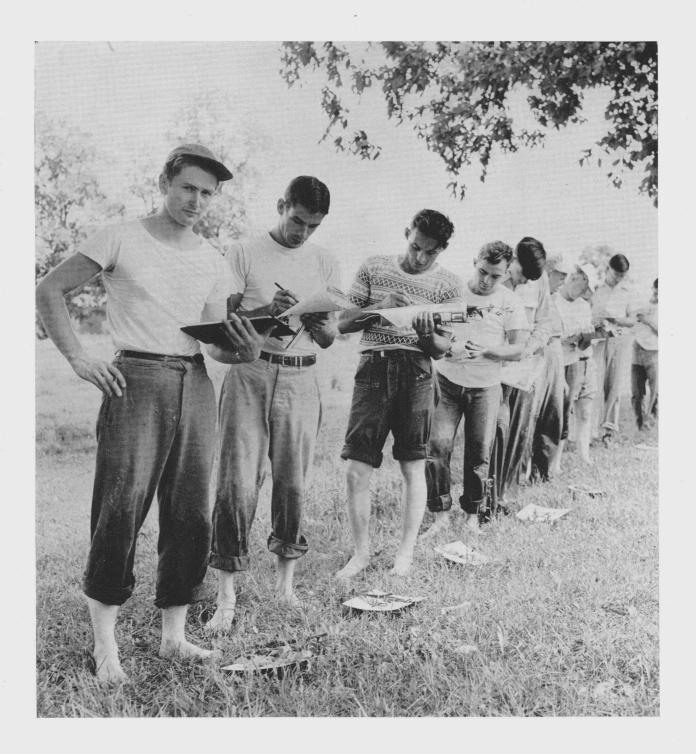

The Heronry

T IS just between winter and spring and the great blue herons have returned. Bordering the St. Joe river just outside the village of Berrien Springs in a wild tangle of tall trees and underbrush is their home—known to E.M.C. students as the Heronry. The tall trees are surmounted by big brushy nests. This a mecca for budding naturalists and the goal for many early spring hikes.

Tower Hill

T IS springtime and students are turning toward Lake Michigan. Just off the Chicago highway bordering Lake Michigan is found Michigan's little Sahara, the sand dune country, with Tower Hill the highest dune of all. This is a favorite picnic area for EMCites. The long climb is a must—breathtaking but satisfying. The run down is better yet. In winter the high hill is ideal for tobogganing and skiing.

A Hillside Classroom

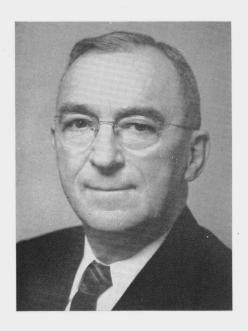

T IS summer and though there may not be gold in "them that hills," there is more to be seen than meets the eye in the hills surrounding our picturesque rural campus. During the summer the members of the ecology class comb the hills for a new flower specimen or a rare fern. These barefoot boys of EMC explore marshes and lakes, tramp over sand dunes, and take spot quizzes on shady hillsides.

financial,

Wilson Trickett, Assistant to the Business Manager, helps to settle financial problems.

or scholastic.

The registrar's office—the historian of the past, the arbiter of the present, the prophet of the future. Through this office you are admitted to the college, advised on your program, and given suggestions and help in placement when you leave. Here are found the answers to such questions as "How many people were in Battle Creek College in 1892?" Where can I find this student at two o'clock?" "What classes must I take to graduate?" "What is John Jones' middle initial?" Here you cannot find the answer to queries regarding possible repairs for a vacuum cleaner or suggestions for a wife for a ministerial student too bashful to find one for himself. Although the office has complete records of the students and institutional history of Battle Creek College, Broadview College, and Emmanuel Missionary College as far back as 1874, there are some questions on which the office politely but firmly declines to commit itself.

Evelyn and Delores are two of the girls who help keep our scholastic records in order.

RELIGION and PHILOSOPHY

EDWIN R. THIELE, M.A., Ph.D. Professor of Religion and Philosophy

The confusion, fear, and unrest of our troubled world makes a study of the Bible particularly appropriate and important today. The unrest among the nations, the disorder in industry and commerce, the bitterness of spirit, bewilderment of purpose, and turpitude of heart so almost universal among the peoples of earth, presents a clarion call for the effective preaching of God's message of hope and love. The Department of Religion of Emmanuel Missionary College headed by E. R. Thiele is endeavoring to prepare its students to meet the needs and opportunities of the present hour by conducting services and holding student efforts in neighboring towns. To the end that there may be among the students of Emmanuel Missionary College a deep love for God and confidence in His Word, that this Word may be better understood and more fully lived, and that the love of God may be more completely reflected in the lives of men, the Department of Religion is putting forth its every effort.

we learn of God,

of His handiwork,

Covering a span of less than twenty years, the Biology Department is still adolescent in growth, bursting at the seams of its present quarters. Whether in preparation for medicine, teaching, laboratory technology, or the enjoyment of a fascinating hobby, the student finds here full opportunities for the study of God's Other Book, whether on nature trails or in the laboratory, discovering hitherto unknown horizons for research. Professor B. H. Phipps, head of the department, and Dr. Harry Wong, zoologist, guided the destinies of 23 senior majors this year. The Biology Department looks forward to a bright future with the promise of added personnel, new courses, and more laboratory space.

to care for our bodies,

Those who aspire to the role of Florence Nightengale—the "lady with the lamp"—will find a well-organized Nursing Education Department to meet their needs. Eighty students are in the prenursing curriculum, preparing themselves for admission to nursing schools all over the country. Graduate nurses who look forward to wider responsibilities of teaching and supervision are attracted by the upper division curriculum leading to a B.S. in Nursing Education. Fifteen registered nurses are working toward this degree, meanwhile gaining practical experience in ministering to the medical needs of our students and community.

of what the world is made,

While providing the students with an adequate foundation for becoming nurses, chemists, and doctors, it is one of the objectives of the Chemistry Department to give each student the opportunity to develop orderly patterns of thought. Habits of precision and exactitude, the ability to distinguish between fact and fancy, and thoughtfulness in evaluation of information, are attributes which Dr. H. F. Halenz, head of the department, believes every student should acquire. During the past term about three hundred students have received training along varied lines, all the while obtaining a clearer view of the Infinite One whose handiwork they study.

PAUL T. GIBBS, M.A., Ph.D. Professor of English

From spelling to Spencer, from composition to Coleridge, from grammar to Gray's "Elegy"—the English Department is an authority on them all. So you can't spell? Can't diagram a sentence? Don't know an allegory from an alligator? Dr. Gibbs and his colleagues can teach you. The English Department has long since reconciled itself to being the repository of all general knowledge and all branches of any art or science which can possibly be disclaimed by any other department. When instructors are expected to teach the political theories of Milton, the analysis of the nominative absolute, the scientific knowledge of Chaucer, the present status of the split infinitive, and the type of armor worn by the early Jutes, it is small wonder that the department unashamedly admits not only that it is the happy hunting ground for assorted arts and skills but that it is proud of its ability to handle the assignments.

Dr. Daniel Augsburger, head of the department, believes in the laboratory method of teaching. An experimental section in language laboratories is planned for the coming year. The department is placing increased stress on cultural training. "There's only one way to learn a language," says Dr. Augsburger, "and that is to know the people, their literature, their art, and their music.

The properties of light, sound, heat; the mysteries of radio waves; the principles which move the simple to complex machines—all are within the province of the Physics Department. The influence of the department is felt all over the campus in the expert help given by its advanced students in the operation of projectors, public address systems, and also the inter-college visits made possible through the generous services of the Amateur Radio Club, Station W8CCM. With the coming of Dr. Edward J. Specht over two years ago, the Department of Mathematics has been strengthened by new courses, plus his genuine affinity for numbers, which, he says, "are the tools that made scientific progress possible." His contagious enthusiasm no doubt accounts for the healthy growth of the department.

Designing a modern sound-proof building for the spring of '51, the Music Department is assuring future music majors the best. Whether in preparation for theory, performance, interpretating sacred music, or enjoyment of a hobby, the student finds full satisfaction. Professor Perry Beach, acting head of the department, and the whole music faculty, are guiding 26 music majors. The noted musical organizations, such as the band, choir, and the Collegians have won favorable recognition with their tours in neighboring cities and states. The Music Department anticipates a bright future with the promise of added personnel, new courses, and what is the most tangible of all, a completely remodeled music building with an addition that will provide more practice rooms and studios.

SOCIAL SCIENCE

EMMETT K. VANDE VERE, M.A., Ph.D. Professor of Social Science

The Social Science Department has as its chief objective the preparation of teachers, preachers, and businessmen who reflect the denomination mold and who understand and interpret history as "His story." Guidance and inspiration in this program are supplied by staff members each of whom has done years of successful teaching in Seventh-day Adventist schools. A reservoir of information is available to the student in the James White Memorial Library which is well stocked with material bearing upon these fields of specialization. Moreover, field trips to Chicago or nearby museums which are made each semester acquaint the various classes with pertinent matter. In the school year 1947-48 one hundred twenty-five students indicated that Social Science was their major field of study; in 1948-49 this group had increased to one hundred thirty-two; and in 1949-50 the figure reached one hundred thirty-nine. With these members a robust vitality has come to permeate the Social Science classes.

the importance of natural things,

Agriculture alone among the modern sciences is used by man for beneficent purposes only. Chemistry, physics, biology, and even medicine are all used to enable mankind the better to kill his brother. The harvest of the field, the fruit of the loom, the gardener's skill are wholly a blessing to mankind, used only for contructive purposes and never for destructive ones. Agriculture at E. M. C. is primarily concerned with this wholly constructive basis, for even its A B C's draw men nearer their Creator through the vocation and the avocation. He gave them in the beginning and will regive them in that not so distant New Earth.

LESLIE SMITH, M.A. Instructor in Applied Arts

The same God who endowed men with cunning in all manner of craftsmanship for the building of His house, and then sent His Son who worked as a carpenter among men, has even today planned that the hands of youth be trained to work with metals and wood. For this reason courses are offered in machine shop, enabling the student to identify metals, machine them, repair tools and equipment; in auto mechanics; in building construction, including the reading of blueprints, estimating costs and materials, and the actual mechanics of construction; and in drawing, emphasizing good design in practical building plans. These courses, under the direction of Leslie Smith, have an appeal not only to the prospective mechanic or maintenance man, but also to the future preacher, teacher, or physician who must at some time plan for repair or construction of buildings.

"Who can find an efficient secretary, for her price is far beyond rubies." To train efficient secretaries has been the goal of the Secretarial Science Department for many years. Not only production but also to develop those characteristics in men and women which will cause them to act intelligently and exercise good judgment in the care of business matters, personal as well as denominational. Within the past four years the department has doubled its enrollment necessitating additional teaching personnel and equipment.

Need a new chair? Just cover the old one.

Inexhaustible Home Economics has many outlets through the senses. . Olfactory: The fusion of ingredients compossing foods of all lands causes "the romance of foods" to be understood. Sound: The whirring of machines brings appreciation of economy and satisfaction of well made clothes. Common Sense: Demonstration of the latest in appliances proves the advisability of good purchase. Sight: The class in Art in Everyday Living emphasizes interior decorating, sharpening the original and individualistic touch. The various parties express that fine finesse in social procedure and decorum.

Science

The library, where is assembled the wisdom of the ages in over 40,000 volumes, provides the opportunity for the mind of youth to meet the mind of the ancient sage, or the authorities of today. Making possible this introduction of the college student to the world of wisdom is a library staff, headed by Miss Arlene Marks, of four professional librarians and fifteen student workers. Increased comfort for readers, space for books, and efficiency in service have been made possible by the use of the lower reading room for reserve books and periodicals. The purchase of a microfilm reader and listening equipment for language records has recently enlarged the services of the library. The circulation of books over the two counters has been over 66,000 for one year, or an average of 66 books per student, a gratifying total for our library.

but we all eat in the cafeteria.

The day begins at four A.M. and ends at eight P.M. in the College Cafeteria. One hundred student employees earn their expenses by preparing the aroma that defies scholastic thoughts. Our chef, Mr. E. L. Knecht, makes weekly trips to Chicago to buy fresh fruits and vegetables. The cafeteria, located beneath Birch Hall, will be enlarged this summer.

The only department on our campus which is on call for twenty-four hours daily, seven days a week is the Custodian's Department. Whether the job is closing the doors at vespers and church or sweeping the floor in the new Physical Education Building after an afternoon of skating, you may be assured that Mr. Davis' capable crew can handle the job.

Want pancakes for breakfast? The lunch counter at the College Supply Store has them. In fact the store has just about anything you could wish to buy from belated birthday cards and Colgate's shaving lotion to cream cheese and choplets. Because of the expanding business of the college store it will soon move out of its cramped quarters to a new and larger building with booths for the socially minded.

The Engineering Department is undoubtedly doing the most "constructive" job of any department at the college. Adding at least one new building annually to the college assets, J. E. Riffel and his able corps of workers are making E. M. C. the denomination's most modern college. In addition to its building activities, an efficient heating plant and comprehensive maintenance service provide employment for over 40 students.

With the new brick addition constructed during the past year, the College Press is, at the present time, one of the largest college presses in the denomination. The press provides employment for 62 student workers in addition to its 16 full-time and six part-time workers.

The Berrien Bindery has been enjoying its new and sunny home in the east end of the Physical Education Building since last July. There, under the supervision of Mr. W. W. Nelson, old battered, torn, and sometimes coverless books become almost like new for schools and libraries in surrounding states. Each year the bindery helps about thirty-five persons obtain a Christian education by supplying student labor.

Wood, glue, and varnish are the raw materials from which nearly 100 students fashion desks, tables, dressers, and beds in an almost endless stream. At E.M.C.'s College Wood Products, Mr. Joe Day, plant superintendent, reveals that the C.W.P. produces $50,000 worth of furniture monthly—furniture which is shipped by train and truck to all parts of the United States. From the time the raw lumber enters the plant until the beautifully varnished finished product emerges from the shipping dock, many busy hands combine their efforts to effect the phenomenon of manufacture.

WEEKS OF PRAYER

ELDER MERLE L. MILLS
Fall Week of Prayer

ELDER C. H. LAUDA Spring Week of Prayer

ELDER S. M. McCORMICK
Spring Week of Prayer

"More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of." This is a reality in E. M. C.'s religious life. The faculty and students alike believe in the power of as well as the need for prayer. All the students are invited to attend the prayer bands which meet each Wednesday evening in the different dormitories. Prayer rooms in the dormitories help individual students find quiet places to commune with their Creator. This is Everybody's Prayer Band which meets at 11:45 each day—a refreshing mid-day devotional service which nourishes the hungry soul. Each fall and spring an emphasis is placed upon the religious experiences of the student. These occasions are commonly known as "Weeks of Prayer." Students anticipate these Weeks of Prayer as much strength is gained and many victories are won through the avenues of the daily prayer bands and morning and evening services conducted by guest speakers. Students and faculty believe "Prayer is the key in the hand of faith which unlocks heaven's store house."

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

The latest addition to our college campus is the new Physical Education building which provides a much needed outlet for recreational and social functions. The spacious new building has also provided adequate room for the large physical training classes. Volleyball, basketball, ping pong, and shuffleboard may all be played at the same time. Three times a week rosin is put on the floor and everyone has the opportunity to roller skate. Only time will tell the true value of this building to our campus.

The new Physical Education Building is not only used for games and gym classes but also for lyceum programs. Since the new building seats over 2000 there is no need to fret about finding a place to sit. Sam Campbell, who visits our campus yearly, gave his new illustrated lecture, "Irresistible California," as the annual CARDINAL Benefit program. Mr. Campbell combined his interest in nature with his keen sense of humor to present one of the finest programs of the school year. After the program the Campbells posed for the CARDINAL photographer.

Social life at E.M.C. consists of many formal and informal activities during the school year. One of the highlights is the reception which was sponsored by the Girls' Forum this year. This is a formal occasion as can be seen by the pictures. The top picture shows Rolene putting on the finishing touches in her last minute preparation for the big event. In the next picture Bob and Barbara are on their way. The last one is a scene from the program.

Festival

Ready for seconds?

Did it go over, Marilyn?

There it goes!

Among some of the more informal occasions during the school year are the Spring and Fall Festivals. There are also many other group parties and picnics which are sponsored by various classes and organization. As spring rolls around, the students begin to migrate to the out-of-doors. Intramural softball teams are organized, and tournaments are played. The tennis courts are also a busy place. The students not only play among themselves, but there are tournaments for both singles and doubles.

HOW WE PRE

PARE FOR COLLEGE

R. A. JOHNSON Principal

Academy Faculty

The purpose of true education is that of teaching young people to know life as well as to give them the tools for earning a living. "To restore in fallen man the image of his Creator" is the will of God for every human creature.

An education which has ideals of lesser height fails to comprehend the possibilities of youth.

Emmanuel Missionary College Academy has for three fourths of a century been dedicated to the work of implanting Christian standards and ideals in thousands of her students. It has successfully directed the attention of these students to paths of Christian living and increased their ability to live useful and serviceable lives for others.

ELDER H. SCHMIDT Spring Week of Prayer

At E.M.C.A. there are spiritual activities,

"How sweet the thought that comes to me On mountain or on stormy sea:
There is no land or clime or zone
Where Jesus leaves his sheep alone."
W. C. Poole

It is our privilege to talk to Jesus as to a friend. As we commune with Jesus daily, our lives will be guided by the Great Teacher speaking to us individually, just as truly as if we could hear His voice.

"Watch and pray, that when the Master cometh,
If at morning, noon, or night,
He may find a lamp in ev'ry window
Trimmed and burning, clear and bright."

Beautiful Gift Books - Each Individually Boxed

FAITH ON TIPTOE,

Marjorie Lewis Lloyd.

If you have once read this beautiful gift book, you will not be satisfied until you have induced someone else to read it. As the title implies, it will help you see over dark horizons. $1.25

IN THE BRIGHT SYRIAN LAND, Frances Jenkins Olcott.

Seeing the Holy Land through the eyes of a well-informed observer is always a new and charming experience, especially when its hills and valleys are used with the name of Christ in a unique symbolism. $1.25

CROWNS AND CROSSES, Marjorie Lewis Lloyd.

This lovely gift book presents vital religious themes down on the street level. It makes Christian experience a thrilling adventure. $1.25

WHATSOEVER THINGS ARE LOVELY, Jessie Wilmore Murton.

Here is poetry of a high order, both in theme and versification. The noble aspects of everyday virtues and the uncommon values in common-place things are captured here in memorable poetic imagery. $1.25
